My biggest takeaway and piece of advice after graduating from Marist is to seize every opportunity that comes your way. Throughout my four years, I changed my major to fashion design, I joined countless clubs and groups, I studied abroad in Florence, and I took part in as many events offered by the fashion program as I could. I attribute this consistency to my several internships and eventual job offer upon graduating. The discomfort I often felt during these times allowed me to learn and develop myself personally and professionally. Marist has many amazing instructors. One of the qualities that sets them apart is that they recognize when you push yourself, and they'll often work with you individually to give you even more opportunities to grow. This is the magic of Marist.

My time at Marist was an incredible journey of growth, discovery, and fulfillment. From the engaging classes to the diverse campus life, every moment left a lasting impression. What truly stood out, though, were the people I met. Through collaborating on projects, exploring shared interests, and simply hanging out, many of my fellow red foxes became lifelong friends and I will forever cherish the memories that we shared. Additionally, the professors and career coaches at Marist helped me develop essential skills I needed for a job in technology after graduation. Whether it was building an application or writing my resume, they always gave me the support I needed to learn and succeed. It's hard to imagine where I would be today without the amazing community at Marist.

As an experiential learner, the opportunities made available to me at Marist truly catered to the way in which I learn best. I was able to study in Washington, D.C. for a semester, gather public opinion working at the Marist Poll, observe what happens on the ground at the New Hampshire Primary, and take on a variety of internships during my studies. Marist is also the place where I made lifelong connections with classmates, friends, and mentors within the Red Fox community. Ultimately, my time at Marist was vital in helping me realize and actualize what I want to do with my life, leading me to pursue graduate studies abroad in the field of comparative public policy.

Throughout my time at Marist, I developed confidence in my career-readiness. I had the opportunity to complete internships, formulate independent research projects, and volunteer in the community, all attributable to an education tailored to my interests. Marist helped me not only leverage my education to thrive in the modern accounting environment, but also develop the confidence and adaptability to achieve my future goals. From engaging with faculty to developing technological proficiencies in industry software, I am extremely grateful for my time at Marist, as it transformed me from an ambitious student into a competent career professional.

“Throughout my time at Marist, I discovered my passion for Environmental Health Sciences through experiential learning and following my interests in my courses with the support of my professors. I completed internships at two nonprofit organizations and The Peconic Land Trust to gain more experience in my field. The faculty were also integral to my acceptance into graduate school. As I continue my graduate studies at New York University, I am incredibly grateful for my time at Marist and the faculty who have supported me along the way.”

Marist has shaped me into the person I am today. Before declaring a major during my second year, it was unclear what my future held. However, programs such as FOCUS as well as my professors and advisors helped guide me toward my passion for psychology. Today, I am in my first year of graduate study at Rutgers University's Graduate School of Applied and Professional Psychology, pursuing a Doctor of Psychology (PsyD) degree in School Psychology! This would not have been possible without the incredible experiences I had at Marist, including several research, internship, and employment opportunities. I will forever be grateful for my time at Marist and the people I crossed paths with along the way!
